

REGENSBURG

In addition to being the home of the University of Regensburg, Regensburg is also one of the most attractive cities to live in in Germany. Its Old Town and the "Stadtamhof" quarter have been a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 2006.

Regensburg is a city with more than 2,000 years of history, present in its unique and largely unchanged medieval city center. Today, the old houses of medieval merchants house shops, offering regional arts and crafts, restaurants, bars and street cafés.

Due to its large student population, Regensburg has a lively art, culture and bar scene, making it a vibrant, bustling city.

MORE INFORMATION

www.ur.de/ur-international www.jura.ur.de

CONTACT

Universität Regensburg
 Fakultät für Rechtswissenschaft
 Universitätsstraße 31
 93053 Regensburg
 GERMANY

Telefon +49 941 / 943-2671
erasmus.mail@jura.uni-regensburg.de

© Fakultät für Rechtswissenschaft // Fotos: Universität Regensburg, Christoph Gailer. Referat II/2 - Kommunikation; April Santiago Photography, Axel Roitzsch

FACULTY OF LAW Study and Research Programs at the University of Regensburg

Universität Regensburg
 FACULTY OF LAW

www.jura.ur.de

ABOUT US

Over 21,000 students are currently enrolled at the University of Regensburg. The modern campus of the UR provides its students with excellent facilities to pursue their studies or research. Dedicated, open-minded teachers, who are preeminent scholars in their fields, lead the way to academic success via well-structured, yet flexible educational programs.

The faculty of law was founded in 1967 and is one of eleven faculties at the University of Regensburg. It offers its 2,500 undergraduate and LL.M. students an extensive and first-class law program with outstanding service throughout the entire study period. The university's language center offers a large variety of German language courses throughout the semester and intensive preparatory language courses at all levels.

YOUR STAY IN REGENSBURG

Different programs provide the opportunity for short or extended stays in Regensburg.

... as an exchange student

Every year, there is a large number of undergraduate students from other law schools (our numerous ERASMUS+ partners and others) who enroll with our faculty for one or two semesters. In fact, Regensburg has recurrently been voted into the top ten Erasmus destinations.

Exchange students can choose from our whole study program. While for the majority of our courses the language of instruction is German, there is a wealth of offerings also in English, especially on topics in European and International law. In addition, you can attend courses from other faculties, too, both in English and in German.

... as an LL.M. student

The Faculty of Law offers international students with a law degree the possibility to earn the Magistra / Magister legum degree (LL.M.). This is an (extendable) one-year master course, covering the basics of German law and requiring, i.a. the completion of an extended research paper. The teaching language of this program is German.

... as a researcher

The Regensburg Law Faculty has for long been a very popular destination for researchers at different career stages from all over the world. Some come to write their dissertation and earn their degree of a Doctor of Laws (Dr. jur.) here.

Some come to spend a postdoc in Regensburg, become part of the stimulating research environment at our various Chairs and work closely with one of our professors. Also, the faculty receives a large number of advanced scholars every year who visit Regensburg for individual research or joint projects.

To all of them, the university offers excellent research facilities in two modern law libraries with large collections of books and periodicals and extensive online research facilities.

Furthermore, researchers can find specialized libraries on the social sciences and humanities in walking distance on campus. Faculty advisors work closely with Dr. jur. students and postdocs and consider it their responsibility to facilitate their immersion into faculty life.